
Creative Commons License and Publishing Rights

Enculturation is published under an Attribution-NonCommercial-ShareAlike Creative Commons License. Authors will retain copyrights to their material. Enculturation will retain publishing rights. We accept papers or projects that have not been published elsewhere. If a submission has been published elsewhere, authors are expected to make this known, and to make significant revisions that warrant republishing. This is especially so if the submission has been previously published on the web. Enculturation has the right to republish any submission either in digital or print form with agreement from the author. Any author who wishes to republish a paper included in Enculturation may do so with written permission by the editors and as long as an acknowledgment of prior publication in Enculturation is made.